 Subject: Japanese food

Hi, Ayumi. Did you know I've been making videos for about three years? My mother is good at cooking, and she has been teaching it to me since I was little. Now, I like cooking very much, and I make videos about cooking. Last Sunday, my grandfather came to Japan, and I saw him. I showed my videos to him then. He enjoyed them and said, "You should make a video about cooking Japanese food!"

I like Japanese food, but I don't know how to cook it. You are a member of the cooking club, right? If you have time on the weekend, can you teach me how to cook some Japanese food?

Fred

(28) What did Fred do last Sunday?

1. He made a video for the first time.
2. He taught his mother cooking.
3. He talked with his grandfather.
4. He took a video with his grandfather.

(29) Which of the following statements is true?

1. Ayumi is a good cook.
2. Ayumi isn't in the cooking club now.
3. Ayumi's grandmother works in Midori City.
4. Ayumi's grandmother doesn't have time on Sunday.

(30) What does Fred ask Ayumi to do?

1. To decide what to cook.
2. To ask her grandmother if he can take a video.
3. To teach him how to cook oyako-don.
4. To tell him the way to her grandmother's restaurant.

Hi, Fred. I'm glad to hear that you are interested in Japanese food. I'm in the cooking club, but actually, I'm not good at it. I can cook only simple dishes. However, my grandmother can teach you how to cook Japanese food. She works for a Japanese restaurant. Her restaurant is in Midori City. Are you free next Sunday morning? She said her restaurant is open from five in the evening on Sundays, so she can give us a cooking lesson in the morning. Tell me the dish you want to cook.

Thank you for your e-mail. I was surprised to hear that your grandmother is a Japanese cook. My favorite Japanese food is oyako-don, so I want to cook it at your grandmother's cooking lesson! I have heard that cooking oyako-don isn't so difficult. And I have something to ask you. If it is OK with you and your grandmother, I want to take a video during our lesson. Can you ask your grandmother?

I can't wait for next Sunday!
